

September 2014

Dear Guest,

I am writing to you to invite you to the inaugural parliamentary reception for The Oesophageal Cancer Westminster Campaign, a new patient-led initiative designed to improve the awareness and treatment of Oesophageal (gullet) cancer. This is one of the fastest rising cancers in men in the UK, with survival rates of only 1 in 10.

The Oesophageal Cancer Westminster Campaign is a group comprised of several patient groups and charities in collaboration with clinical experts, industry and families bereaved by oesophageal cancer campaigning at Westminster and throughout the NHS. The campaign aims to raise awareness and work together with policy makers and politicians to increase patient survival rates through better prevention, earlier diagnosis and increased patient access to the best treatment.

The Oesophageal Cancer Westminster Campaign are organising a Parliamentary autumn reception on Monday 13th October, 2014 on the House of Commons terrace, from 4 pm to 6 pm. The reception will include a wide range of speakers with a clinical and patient focus. It will enable parliamentarians and stakeholders to discuss the provision surrounding oesophageal cancer and how stakeholders can work together with government to reduce the mortality rate.

The Government has highlighted the need to improve cancer survival rates to bring us in-line with EU average rates. One of the key elements of indicators related to cancer in the NHS Outcomes Framework is earlier diagnosis – this relates to improvements needed in undiagnosed Barrett's oesophagus, the major precursor lesion that leads to oesophageal cancer. Public awareness of the condition and its symptoms is low; therefore the recent pilot study for awareness of Oesophago-Gastric Cancer in the North East - Be Clear on Cancer – is an important opportunity for the NHS.
